YES, I DID SAY THAT!
A look at who's saying what in entertainment
Compiled by Seth Abramovitch

“For the last 15 years, I've been in this box that just said, 'Cute blond actress, kind of funny, small boobs.'”

ELIZABETH BANKS
The Pitch Perfect 2 director, on the perception that Hollywood “clearly didn't expect too much from me,” at the Inspiration Awards, geared toward motivating underprivileged girls.

“Ask yourself in what city, state, nation, world is this considered protecting & serving? What will you tell your child?”

JUSSIE SMOLLETT
The Empire star, responding on Twitter to a YouTube video that caught a police officer in McKinney, Texas, drawing his weapon and tackling a 14-year-old African-American girl outside a public pool party.

“Holy shit!”

VICTOR ESPINOZA
The American Pharoah jockey, voicing disbelief after winning the Belmont Stakes on June 6, making the horse the first to win the sport's Triple Crown in 37 years.

“Oh ok.”

DANIEL EK
The Spotify CEO, tweeting his underwhelmed reaction to the June 8 launch of competing streaming service Apple Music. Ek later deleted the tweet.

“I was impotent, fatigued, emotionally depressed.”

CHRIS PRATT
The Jurassic World star, sharing in an interview with Men’s Health U.K. magazine the many unwanted side effects of having been overweight — at nearly 300 pounds.

“I'm picking up 160 pounds and raking them in now, and shaking the dick where it belongs.”

AMY SCHUMER
The comedian, on why she refused to do standup at the White House Correspondents' Dinner, accepting the Time magazine list of 100 most influential people in the world for her work with the Planned Parenthood.
